TUNG CHUEH

At the fingertips, it is worn, collected, and carried forward as living heritage.

Not for everyone. Only for you.

Who We Are

TUNG CHUEH is an independent Chinese designer jewellery brand centred on fingertip jewellery.

Chinese classical art carries a lineage of thousands of years, yet the ruptures of the twentieth century left an aesthetic space still largely unfilled. Contemporary Chinese jewellery has too often been confined to symbolic quotation, without forming a mature design language rooted in its own culture and naturally legible within the global language of high jewellery.

TUNG CHUEH was born to answer that space. The brand emblem brings together the Western eagle - vision, freedom and resolve - with the Chinese dragon, a symbol of auspicious protection and plural harmony. Through this dual totem, Chinese classical aesthetics are given a living, enduring presence in the present.

From signature jewels for the hand to bespoke pieces made to be passed on, fingertip jewellery is our central design anchor, reconnecting classical beauty with contemporary gestures and daily rituals. At the fingertips, jewellery becomes something to wear, to collect, and to carry forward.

TUNG CHUEH is not for everyone. Only for you.

Jewellery at Fingertips

Heritage. Gesture. Form.

TUNG CHUEH Fingertip Jewellery

Beyond the fixed codes of rings and nail art, TUNG CHUEH opens a new dimension of adornment at the edge of the hand - a quiet enquiry into where jewellery may begin and where it may be worn.

Across the collection, precious metals form the structure. Stones are selected by hand and set after careful shaping, polishing and finishing. Mother-of-pearl, jade, natural lacquer and enamel bring depth of material, while selected feather elements reinterpret the visual language of traditional Chinese diancui in a contemporary way. Each piece is repeatedly adjusted at a minute scale to follow the natural curve of the nail.

Detachable, reusable and made to be collected, TUNG CHUEH fingertip jewellery offers an alternative to disposable nail decoration. The fingertip is no longer a blank space outside the realm of jewellery; it becomes a poetic site for light, gesture and material presence. These are not fleeting accessories, but miniature art jewels intended for long-term keeping.

Imperial Echoes

This collection carries a distinctive vision of Chinese imperial beauty: the deep marine blue once associated with diancui is reinterpreted here through enamel, while natural red agate unfolds a rich, auspicious warmth. Blue evokes the courtly elegance passed down through Eastern palaces; red recalls the blessing and abundance of the imperial garden. On a golden structure, the two colours meet in a balance that is opulent yet restrained, allowing Chinese imperial aesthetics to resonate anew.

Eternal Bond

Bronze Echoes

This collection draws from lines carved into bronze vessels three thousand years ago, as if those marks had flowed through time and condensed into jewels. Lapis lazuli opens the deep blue sky of the Bronze Age; green agate preserves the patina of ancient forests; pink shell carries dawn light polished by time. Dragon and phoenix motifs are no longer distant symbols: through the wearer's fingertips, their gem-set eyes look upon the world today.

Heavenly Bird · Chronicle
Nail shape · Spire
Deep lapis lazuli opens the blue of an ancient night sky. A diamond-set divine bird takes flight from archaic bronze lines, while an emerald eye carries a gentle echo of that age.

Ocean Echoes

As if the evening light from a side gallery of the Louvre had been gently sealed at the fingertip. Selected mother-of-pearl releases a soft, warm glow; hand-set diamonds scatter like tiny stars. Following the tender curves of Rococo, the collection honours the ineffable romance embedded in Paris.

Twin Souls
Nail shape · Almond
This piece condenses the dual philosophy of taiji into a fingertip jewel. Natural black and white shell form a soft play of shadow and light, completed by two diamond stars.

Main material · white mother-of-pearl / black shell inlay
Secondary materials · diamonds
Metal · 18K gold-plated silver / rhodium-plated silver / 18K gold-plated 9K gold / rhodium-plated 9K gold / 14K gold

Waves and Stars
Nail shape · Spire
Deep-sea mother-of-pearl holds the glow of moving waves, lightly touched with diamond stars – the instant when starlight rests upon a cresting wave.

Main material · white mother-of-pearl
Secondary materials · diamonds
Metal · 18K gold-plated silver / rhodium-plated silver / 18K gold-plated 9K gold / rhodium-plated 9K gold / 14K gold

Ref. TC-FN-S3-01

Dawn Starlight
Nail shape · Almond
Warm pink mother-of-pearl is steeped in the morning mist of Montmartre. Its iridescence recalls a rose-coloured cloud lifted from the Seine, with tiny diamonds like stars.

Main material · pink shell
Secondary materials · diamonds
Metal · 18K gold-plated silver / rhodium-plated silver / 18K gold-plated 9K gold / rhodium-plated 9K gold / 14K gold

Earth Echoes

Taking the gifts of mountains and earth as its creative line, this collection gathers amethyst, blue topaz, emerald, red agate, amazonite, moonstone, malachite, obsidian and nanosital. Following a relaxed European sense of nature, each piece carries a poetic yet restrained breath of the earth. Stone becomes paper, engraving an echo that stretches across millions of years.

Stars Adorning the Evening Sky
Nail shape · Almond
Inspired by the star-filled skies of Shangri-La, this piece imagines a private dialogue between agate formed deep underground over millions of years and the vast evening sky above the mountains.

Forest Echoes

At the heart of this collection is lacquer sap, slowly nurtured by nature and time. Applied by hand in successive layers, it merges with a precious metal base, while thin mother-of-pearl is set into the warm lacquer surface. Following a Chinese lacquer tradition passed down for four thousand years, each piece is repeatedly coated, dried and polished until the breath of lacquered wood from the forest resonates at the fingertip.

The Unknowable Gaze
Nail shape · Shield
Inspired by the gilded bronze masks of Sanxingdui, this piece layers green lacquer over a patinated bronze-like ground. Gold lacquer suggests an ancient worn face, while mother-of-pearl becomes the blank eye.

Main material · white mother-of-pearl
Technique · natural lacquer

Amulet Echoes

As an Eastern stone of protection, Hetian jade is not measured only by carat or clarity. Its value lies in a deep cultural bond of safeguarding. White jade glows like moonlight; green jade carries the steadiness of mountains after rain; black jade anchors selfhood and conviction. Fine carved lines hold the poetry of Eastern restraint, preserving five thousand years of jade protection as a calm blessing at the fingertips.

Amulet of Peace · I

Musical Echoes

In Musical Echoes, each jewel feels like a note falling from a classical score. Silver petals turn like a Viennese waltz; warm gold opens with the softness of a moonlit serenade; neatly arranged emeralds shine like the measured steps of a solemn march. With every turn of the hand, light moving across matte silver, warm gold and gemstones becomes a melody travelling through time.

Soft Strings, Pearl Murmurs
Nail shape · Gui
Warm gold gently embraces luminous white mother-of-pearl. Its soft glow resembles a sustained note in a lyrical piece, telling an intimate romance through texture rather than glare.

Upgraded Nail Settings Ring-Supported

Refined and repeatedly upgraded, these two ring-supported nail settings reveal both character and craftsmanship. Within a millimetre-scale structure, practicality and beauty quietly merge. The upgraded designs offer greater stability and comfort, while adding a new elegance. All collections may now be upgraded with these two settings.

Dragon Claw Holding the Moon
Nail shape · Shield (linked)
Mother-of-pearl light is lifted by a dragon-claw metal structure. A pear-shaped diamond and small stones extend between fingertip and ring, like a small moon gently held by an ancient creature.

we reshape the contemporary expression of Chinese classical aesthetics.

Antique Fine Jewellery Bespoke
Beyond the fingertip jewellery collection, TUNG CHUEH also offers a higher level of bespoke antique-jewellery service.
Each commission begins with one-of-a-kind antique materials: small jadeite elements, tourmalines, pearls, jade and archival gemstones are reawakened within new metal structures, becoming contemporary jewellery pieces that cannot be replicated.
The works shown here are previous bespoke archives. Because antique materials vary in size, colour and provenance, they cannot be reproduced exactly;
new commissions will be redesigned according to the rare materials available.

TUNG CHUEH

THE UNSEEN NARRATIVE

THE UNSEEN NARRATIVE

When your fingertip touches this page,
our narrative no longer belongs only to its designers.

We have always believed that following the current of brand aesthetics is the least sincere creative choice. Some of our more avant-garde pieces may feel briefly unfamiliar to viewers accustomed to traditional beauty. Yet as Chinese aesthetic jewellery design increasingly moves toward sameness, this sense of unfamiliarity is precisely what TUNG CHUEH chooses to preserve. We do not design for traffic, follow industry habits, narrow cultural expression into a fixed frame, or pursue experimentation detached from wearability. Instead, we calmly welcome every conversation opened by that unfamiliarity.

By the time you read this, the story of our aesthetics has already left our studio and entered your world.

FOUNDING TEAM

Founder / Creative Designer

Tungchueh Wei
Researcher in Chinese classical art, graduate of the Academy of Arts & Design, Tsinghua University, and founder of TUNG CHUEH.
Within TUNG CHUEH, he leads the research and creative translation of ancient symbols, object structures and Eastern formal language, shaping the brand's cultural narrative and visual framework.

Co-founder / Jewellery Designer

Miyi Liang
Founding jewellery designer of TUNG CHUEH. She focuses on fingertip jewellery, body-worn structures and material expression. Beginning with sculptural nail-surface forms, she explores new ways for jewellery to be worn at the edge of the hand, transforming classical aesthetics into contemporary collectible jewels.
